IRISH ELECTRO-POP SENSATION

LAOISE

“She’s making electronic pop like no other emerging artist – the closest comparison I can think is Robyn”

- UK INDEPENDENT

“A precocious alt-pop talent, she attacks each project with incredible creativity, this ruthless sense of energy.”

- CLASH

22 year old LAOISE (pronounced Lee-sha) has built a growing listenership for her dreamy, ambitious and frank pop songs about relationships and heartbreak, often with darker, moodier, more introspective lyrics and juxtaposed with upbeat electro and synth production. LAOISE records, produces and releases her music completely independently. She’s become known for presenting her own brand of bold, glittering, gutsy electro-pop – paving the way for Irish-born pop music.

Taking her cues from the silky production of acts like Tove Styrke, Troye Sivan and MØ, LAOISE incorporates elements of synth, indie and alternative pop into her music. She is also deeply inspired by household names like Kate Bush and David Bowie, as well as the different musical personas of Taylor Swift.

With her most recent release, the ‘Mad’ EP, LAOISE presents four songs created with real intent which will infuse her live set with a determined but feel-good vibe this summer. LAOISE will be taking her new music to a number of 2019 festivals including Lollapalooza Berlin, Body & Soul (Main Stage), Primavera Pro and Indiependence – with more to be announced.
